James Boyle, Jennifer Jenkins : Intellectual Property: Law The Information Society Selected Statutes Treaties: 2015 Edition before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Intellectual Property: Law The Information Society Selected Statutes Treaties: 2015 Edition:

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. A worthwhile purchase, especially for the price.By T. BrittIt is a helpful compilation of statutes and relevant law. I prefer it more than the accompanying textbook, but they are both very affordable and handy. The fact that it is an open source text makes it even more appealing as an alternative to the overpriced textbooks out there.

THIS IS NOT THE CURRENT, 2016, EDITION. The new version is available on Amazon here <http://amzn.to/2aWYZWX> 2015 Intellectual Property Statutory Supplement. This book contains the full text of the U.S. Trademark (Lanham), Copyright, and Patent Acts, the California Uniform Trade Secrets Act, the Economic Espionage Act, the ICANN UDRP (domain name resolution policy), the Berne and Paris Conventions, the WIPO Copyright Treaty and the TRIPS Agreement. It is intended for use with our casebook, Intellectual Property: Law in the Information Society, by James Boyle and Jennifer Jenkins, but it may also be used as a low cost general statutory supplement or educational resource. The book is an "open coursebook" available under a Creative Commons license. A free downloadable version is available at the Duke Center for the Study of the Public Domain website. James Boyle is William Neal Reynolds Professor of Law at Duke Law School and the former Chairman of the Board of Creative Commons. Jennifer Jenkins is Senior Lecturing Fellow at Duke Law School and the Director of the Center for the Study of the Public Domain. The editors wish to thank Mr. Balfour Smith, the Center's coordinator, who ran every stage of the book's creation, from copy-editing to cover design.
