

[Download pdf] Law Relating to Conversion in Islam Towards Harmony of Conflicting Matrimonial Laws in India

Law Relating to Conversion in Islam Towards Harmony of Conflicting Matrimonial Laws in India

Shahnaz Noor

*DOC | audiobook | ebooks | Download PDF | ePub

 Download

 Read Online

2003-12-01 Original language: English #File Name: 8171513433232 pages | File size: 21.Mb

Shahnaz Noor : Law Relating to Conversion in Islam Towards Harmony of Conflicting Matrimonial Laws in India before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Law Relating to Conversion in Islam Towards Harmony of Conflicting Matrimonial Laws in India:

Language: English Pages: 232 About the Book The conversion to Islam is widely misunderstood and misinterpreted. The book analyses the concept of conversion under Islam in the light of Quranic Provisions and examines the different problems generated by such conversions in India. On account of the existence of various personal laws in Indian Legal System, the Conversion to Islam gives birth to manifold problems and the badly affected area is marriage. The book analyses the various rules governing conversion to Islam and their relationship with Hindu, Christian, Parsi and Jewish personal laws. To achieve a complete harmony between conflicting matrimonial laws, some measures have been suggested which may prove useful in resolving these controversies. The book will be of immense value not only to the students of law but to the lawyers and researchers alike. About the Author Born in Srinagar in 1968. The author had her graduation in Law from the University of Kashmir, She has been the recipient of gold medal for standing first in the LL.B examination. The author has completed her Master degree in Family Laws from the University of Kashmir and has been associated as Teaching Assistant in the Faculty of Law, Kashmir University. Presently the author is pursuing research her Ph. D in Law. Preface The fundamental object common to all religions is to lavish upon the mankind the bounteous benedictions which is executed by fastening a spiritual pact between