Philip L. Dubois : Lawmaking by Initiative: Issues, Options and Comparisons (Agathon Series on Representation) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Lawmaking by Initiative: Issues, Options and Comparisons (Agathon Series on Representation):

Describes the history of the initiative process and the major issues that have arisen during its increasing use in recent years. By elucidating the problems that have arisen and their possible solutions, the authors seek both to inform the debate about the wisdom of the initiative and to offer suggestions for improvement to jurisdictions that choose to use the process. With the aid of more than 40 charts and tables, the authors compare the major features of the initiative in the American jurisdictions that have adopted the procedure--24 states and the District of Columbia. They draw particularly on the experience in California, the most frequent U.S. user of the initiative and a major battleground in the development of ideas about the process. The book also discusses the use of the initiative in other countries, particularly Switzerland, where the process originated and the only other major country in the world that makes extensive use of the initiative today.

About the Author Philip L. Dubois is the author of From Ballot to Bench: Judicial Elections and the Quest for Accountability (1978), two edited volumes on court reform, and a host of articles on judicial selection and court administration. In April 1997 he became the 22nd president of the University of Wyoming. Floyd Feeney is Professor of Law at the University of California, Davis. From 1968 to 1986 he also served as Executive Director of the university's Center on Administration of Criminal Justice. A former law clerk for U.S. Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black, he is the author of three books and numerous articles on criminal justice and court reform. In 1992 he and Professor Dubois authored a monograph for the California Policy Seminar entitled Improving the California Initiative Process: Options for Change.
