Worst textbookBy Lena Adamsthe way it was put together is terrible can't read everything in it. the pages were cut wrong. I bought it and can't even trade it back in, yet you can still buy it on .0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. what I needed for hindscc LET1213 legal researchBy TopazeleeThis is what I needed for hinds community college LET1213 legal research class. Glad I found it used and cheap.

Using a hands-on approach, this book provides learners with an easy and comfortable way to learn about the processes, materials, and environment of legal research. It contains an introductory overview of a law library collection, allows users to conduct research without visiting an actual library, and explains, with simple language and exercises the many methods of legal research. For all law office personnel, paralegals, judicial personnel, and criminal justice instructors.

" . . . very engaging and encouraging for students who will be novices in the field of legal research . . . the first part of the text that covers definitions of law, introduction to research, citation methods and analysis is very good . . . the sheer volume of assignments is wonderful." Sait Reese Tarhan, Cincinnati State Technical and Community College " . . . very good examples . . ." William Covington, Edmunds Community College "This text does cover all the topics that are normally covered in a legal research and writing course at the undergraduate level." Adam Epstein, Central Michigan University From the Back Cover The best method for grasping legal research and legal analysis is to "just do it." Learning Legal Research gives students everything they need to analyze and research situations at any point during the legislative process. The book includes the cases feature that is critical for students lacking immediate access to law libraries. It can either stand alone or be used in conjunction with a Legal Research and Writing textbook. About the Author Charles P. Nemeth JD., Ph.D., LL.M., is the Director of Graduate Criminal Justice/Legal Studies, Director of the Institute of Law and Public Policy, and Director of Program Development at RET at the California University of Pennsylvania.
