Thomas A. Binford : Legal Whores before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Legal Whores:

Expos of the legal industry, both lawyers and judges. An aid to Pro Se litigants in the more common disciplines of law.

About the Author The author was born in Brooklyn, New York in the late 1930's. The family matriculated to Chicago when he was about 7 years old via a several year sojourn in Mississippi. His father was from Madison, Alabama and his mother from Champaign, Illinois. His father literally worked himself to death at the age of 44 years. In fact both of his parents died at the age of 44 years. The author ended up in a Chicago orphanage while his only sister (no brothers) went to an aunt's care in Springfield, Illinois. The orphanage was just two blocks from skid row in Chicago. The stay at the orphanage was a real culture shock and learning experience for the author. At the age of ten, he ran away from the Chicago orphanage to his father's sister's farm in Mississippi. The aunt treated him as one of her own. Following graduation from high school, the author attended college in Mississippi for two years and then joined the United States Marine Corps. Boot camp at Parris Island, South Carolina had a very profound effect on this young man. He stated that it was one of the best things that ever happened to him. His tour in the Marine Corps included such diversity as the Marine Corps Rifle Team, embassy duty, fleet recon, Viet Nam, Burma, Thailand, and the Philippines. After three years of military duty, he returned to college in Mississippi where he graduated with a degree in chemistry and subsequently, with his wife and new born son, began employment as a bench chemist in New Jersey with a large oil company. His next job was technical sales for a large corporation which entailed technical sales covering the southeast United States. This lasted for some 6 years of constant traveling. The author and his family ended up residing in central Florida in the latter 1960's or before Disney World. He left the chemistry discipline and his new vocations became real estate and politics. He became successful in both endeavors. So much so, that he and several of his cohorts were indicted by the local grand jury on alleged election law violations in the mid-seventies. At the same time a recession hit the country and he went broke. Instead of declaring bankruptcy, he worked three jobs in order to honor all of his debts which he successfully paid off within 4 years. Continuing his ventures in real estate and politics, he is now well seasoned and a hell of a lot smarter. He had numerous positions both corporate and enymosiary in the community including President and Founder of the Association of Florida Bass Clubs and the Florida Bass Fisherman magazine, President of United Cerebral Palsy, Chairman of the Port Authority (appointed by the Governor), and airplane pilot (instrument rated in his own aircraft). Two months after his son graduated from medical school, the author was amicably divorced from his wife of 27 years. His dissolution of marriage action and the previous indictment by the grand jury were instrumental in his entering the legal discipline. The author earned a degree in legal studies and opened his own legal clinic. It is the experiences he witnessed within the legal community that generated his strong drive to write this book. Excerpt. Reprinted by permission. All rights reserved. A total denigration of lawyers, judges and the entire judicial system and its ancillary activities. This book gives a realistic insight into this sleazy, greedy system. "If the poor bastards can't afford an attorney, then screw 'em..." The truth about your legal system written by an independent paralegal. The author wrote, edited and published LEGAL WHORES...no ghost writers or editors involved. "I have a goodly number of attorney acquaintances...most are incompetent...everyone of them would prostitute their daughter for a nickel..." Local stories about the most simple legal actions such as divorce, small claims, child support, evictions... How the legal fraternity puts its fingers in your "cookie jar." "...the judiciary in this country don't give a damn if you can not cough up enough money to employ one of these greasy, slime-ball attorneys to represent you in court." A beware expos on the lawyers and judges in your area. What you can expect! Florida Supreme Court Justice Harding, "...even members of our own legal community see unnecessary litigation and call family law a fee-generating machine." You really won't believe what is going on in the everyday scenario of your local court house or the typical lawyer's office.
